About this Book

This book is divided into 20 chapters, each of which helps teach you how to start speaking Spanish immediately. The book begins by laying down some ground rules for learning how to speak Spanish. The next section talks about the Spanish alphabet and how to pronounce the letters thereof. You're then given some quick differences between Spanish and English that you should be aware of as you start the learning process. The subsequent chapters show you how to speak Spanish in different situations. The second-to-last chapter describes some common mistakes you are likely to make when learning Spanish as a beginner and how to avoid them. The final chapter gives you some short stories to help build your conversational Spanish skills, which are highly important in learning a new language.

All of these chapters combined provide you with a basis and guide to begin your Spanish speaking endeavor with confidence. The tools and exercises in this book will give you the ability to start using Spanish in your everyday life almost immediately, as well as the confidence to do so without worrying you'll make a fool of yourself. This book will be your teacher and your reference guide in the future should you need to refresh your memory or brush up on your skills. This short book is by no means as comprehensive as a college degree in Spanish, but it does provide an in-depth study of the Spanish language and the process of learning a new language in general. It will allow you to begin communicating with native Spanish speakers and start adding Spanish to your everyday life.

Please see the following Table of Contents for more detailed information on how the book is structured.

Introduction

Have you been thinking about learning a new language? Is Spanish one you're considering? Well, Spanish is at the top of the list of the most widely-spoken languages; in fact, over 500 million people are native Spanish speakers, so by that measure it's the second most popular language after Mandarin Chinese. Besides, research has proven that it is the most romantic language! Whether you want to learn Spanish just to broaden your knowledge or so that you can speak it when you travel to a Spanish-speaking country, you definitely need a guide to make the learning process easier.

If you're not trying to pass a Spanish grammar class, this is the best book for you because it will get you talking the language fast. In any case, you really don't have to be a linguistics professor to speak a language! This book will teach you how to speak Spanish using practical examples and will walk you through conversations to help you get your point across when you're meeting new people, going shopping, going for an interview, going to a restaurant, traveling, asking for directions etc. In simple terms, it will teach you how to speak Spanish in practically any situation.

You won't find boring grammar rules and lessons that you probably wouldn't bother with anyway; instead, you will find practical examples and notes that will help you understand how to actually speak. However, there will be words of warning so you don't end up with egg on your face, so to speak. While Spanish is not as confusing to learn as English – for example, there are not so many homophones (words that sound the same but have different spellings and/or meanings) – the language does have its own little quirks which you need to be aware of.

There are some different reasons for wanting to learn the Spanish language. Being bilingual (knowing two different languages) will make you highly desirable on the job market and will give you a greater sense of self-worth when you can step in and help people struggling with the language barrier out in public. How many times have you seen someone speaking Spanish struggling to communicate with another individual and you standing there, wishing you could help? Now you no longer have to be a bystander, you can step in and take control and help out both individuals. Not only is learning a new language beneficial to your resume and your self-worth, but it's also an excellent way to keep your brain exercising. They say never to stop learning – so learning a new language can be your first step to continuing education.

As you go on with the learning journey, you will also find important tips that will make comprehension and speaking a lot easier. Using this guide, you really can be speaking Spanish in no time at all. Buen viaje and the best of luck!

Chapter 1: The Basics

How to learn a new language

Learning a new language is not as complicated as many people think it is; just remember the things discussed in this chapter and you'll soon increase your fluency. The most difficult step is to get going, so instead of putting it off, start learning right now. Let's start with some important tips that will help you get a good grasp of the Spanish language.

Important tips for learning Spanish (or any other language)

Set your goal

Setting a daily goal will keep you constantly disciplined while learning a new language. If you have tried learning another language with little or no success, the problem may have been that you didn't have any goal. Set a SMART goal – i.e., it should be Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Realistic, and Time-bound. If you are wondering how to set SMART goals when learning a language, try this one:

Know what you want to achieve by learning Spanish. You can say that you want to be able to talk in Spanish for five minutes within five weeks of studying the language by learning two pages of Spanish every day and listening to five minutes of audio on how to speak Spanish.

If you practice one day and then again the next week, or twice a week, you'll never reach your goal. It is important to be constant, and by constant, I mean you need to practice every single day. Try to set a goal, for instance, one chapter a day, one page a day, five phrases a day, and so on.

Practice

How will you succeed if you never practice? Learning how to speak a new language is very involved. Think of it like learning how to fly; you can't fly for an hour if you have never flown for five minutes. It is also like learning how to swim; no matter how much video, audio or text on swimming you study, you won't learn if you don't actually get in the water and swim. It's the same with languages.

If it's not practical to speak to someone in Spanish every day, why not team up with a native Spanish speaker on social media who is learning English? Then you can both practice your newly learned skills via email and Skype.

Enhancing your accent

You can watch Spanish movies or a few YouTube videos in order to improve your accent (those with subtitles are a lot easier to follow). You can also listen to music to acquire better pronunciation. Use a dictionary when you don't know a word, practice pronouncing Spanish words by yourself, and keep trying hard until you get it right.

A note about online translators like Google Translator: I am trilingual and I can confidently tell you that online translators cannot teach you how to pronounce words, phrases and sentences correctly. In fact, they will probably mess up your progress in mastering your accent. Although they can help a little, they won't teach you how to actually say things like a native would. So, don't just rush to Google Translator to help you pronounce words. Instead, I would recommend searching for and listening to real people speaking Spanish. YouTube is probably the easiest place to find such people. You can also check out the translations for different songs online (you need the lyrics and audio for both languages so that you can compare as you listen to the songs), or read and listen to a Spanish Bible as you compare to an English Bible (ensure it is the same version).

Make friends

Try as much as possible to make new friends who can speak Spanish and speak to them in Spanish. Don't be embarrassed that your Spanish is not as fluent as theirs to begin with. You can only perfect your Spanish by speaking it. You might even say "I am pregnant" when you're trying to say "I am embarrassed"; it happens, but don't be so cautious that you don't end up speaking much Spanish. In fact, you will probably learn from your mistakes as you interact with people.

Tip: If you are looking for someone to speak Spanish with, head over to one of the freelancing sites like Upwork (formerly oDesk), Freelancer and Elance and hire a native Spanish speaker. It's free to post a job, and you'll find many Spanish teachers whose rates are quite reasonable.

Don't get frustrated

If you can't get it right, don't get frustrated. Sometimes we have a bad day or we are not in the mood, but no matter why you're not getting it, don't get desperate. If you are practicing and practicing but you can't get it right, it might be because you are tired, so stop and try later. Go for a walk, relax, and then come back to try again, and if you still can't get it, try the next day or ask for someone's help.

Learn more

Even if you are learning through a phrasebook, it might not have enough vocabulary. There is always something new to learn: new words, new phrases, new scenarios, etc. Actively seek out new words you don't know and would like to learn. An easy way to start is to learn about common things that you have at home or at your office. Just write down the words for the various items. Start in your room by writing the names of things you find there, like shoes, then the Spanish words for them ('shoes' in Spanish is 'zapatos'), then the pronunciation for each word. After making a list, set a goal to learn five words daily. You can even make flashcards and put a word and its translation on each side. In short, if you see something you could be learning, go ahead and learn it!

Make Spanish labels

Get stickers and label literally everything in your house with the Spanish word and a sentence or two in Spanish. This will expose you to a Spanish environment and help you orient your mind to think in Spanish, because you will be constantly reminded of how to say different things in Spanish.

Think in Spanish

If you are used to thinking in English, this is going to be a tough one, but it is worth the effort. Push yourself to converse with yourself and think in Spanish. Let that inner voice within you talk to you in Spanish. Talk to yourself and do whatever else you usually do subconsciously in English.

Use circumlocution and contextualization

We all find ourselves having a hard time remembering a word, name or phrase even when speaking in English, especially when talking about technical things. I am talking about the times when you find yourself saying “Yes, that one” in the middle of a conversation because you can’t remember the right name or phrase for something. Use this to your benefit when learning Spanish or any other language. In this case, you can try to explain things in context. For instance, if you cannot remember how to say ‘a cup’ in Spanish, don’t fret; you can try to explain it in several other words, like “the thing that people use to drink tea!”

Also, try to understand meaning by understanding the context. You really don’t need to know the meaning of every single word in Spanish because you can use the contextualization strategy to understand everything that people are talking about.

To summarize, when you set out to learn a new language, you need to immerse yourself in it. It’s no good going to a lesson or reading a chapter out of a self-teaching book like this once a week, then forgetting about it until the next week. You need to learn something every day, and practice what you’ve learned. Come up with creative ways to remember new words and phrases, and you will soon be speaking Spanish without even thinking about it. It’s not just what you learn – how you learn is important too!

Chapter 2: Pronunciation

Pronunciation is important in any language, so get the hang of this before attempting to speak to anyone. These days, it's much easier, because there are numerous videos online to help you. In this chapter, you'll learn how to pronounce individual letters by fitting them into common, easily pronounced Spanish words.

One major advantage of Spanish over English is that with most words, the pronunciation is phonetic – the words sound just like they are spelled. There are very few homophones to confuse you. That's words like there, their, they're which sound the same but have totally different meanings and spellings. Here's a quick guide to Spanish pronunciation.

Vowels

In Spanish, there are just five vowels and one sound for each vowel.

[a] – ah – The ‘a’ is pronounced as if you were gargling. Open your mouth wide and pronounce as father and saw. Try: mapa, agua.

[e] – eh – The ‘e’ sound doesn’t exactly exist in English; the closest pronunciation might be ‘eh’ as met and red. Don’t pronounce the ‘e’ as in English! Try: verde, enero.

[i] – ee – The ‘i’ sound is pretty much like ‘ee’ as feet and bee. The ‘i’ sound is very different than the English pronunciation. Try: fino, mi.

[o] – oh – The letter ‘o’ is pronounced as ‘oh’ but with a shorter sound as boat and know. Try: coco, roto.

[u] – oo – It’s pronounced as ‘oo’ like in boot or do. Try: futuro, muro.

Diphthongs

A diphthong is a sound formed by the combination of two vowels in a single syllable, in which the sound begins as one vowel and moves toward another.

|a|+|i| – ai, ay - The ‘ai’ and ‘ay’ sound like why and ay! Try: aire, mayo.

|a|+|u| – au – The ‘au’ sounds like the expression auch! Try: aunque, aula.

|e|+|u| – eu – There is not really a sound for this in English; it’s something like ew, but using the ‘e’ sound as bed and the ‘u’ as do. Try: Europa, deudor.

|e|+|i| – ei, ey – The pronunciation of ‘ei’ and ‘ey’ is close to hey and say. Try: reina, buey.

|i|+|a| – ia – The ‘ia’ sounds like yah and tiara. Try: piano, anciano.

|i|+|e| – ie – The ‘ie’ sounds like yes. Try: tierra, fiera.

|i|+|o| – io – The ‘io’ is pronounced as yo-yo or John. Try: radio, río.

|i|+|u| – iu – The ‘iu’ is pronounced as you. Try: ciudad, viuda.

|o|+|i| – oi, oy – The ‘oi’ and ‘oy’ sound like toy and boy. Try: hoy, heroico.

|u|+|a| – ua – The ‘ua’ is pronounced as water. Try: actuar, aduana.

|u|+|e| – ue – The ‘ue’ sounds like wet. Try: Huevo, sueño.

|u|+|i| – ui – The ‘ui’ sounds like we and wheat. Try: arruinar, huir.

|u|+|o| – uo – The ‘uo’ sounds like quote and continuous. Try: individuo, cuota.

Consonants

A number of Spanish consonants are pronounced differently from their English counterparts. If you can, try to listen to a native speaker and hear how they handle them.

[b] – beh – The letter ‘b’ is pronounced after l, m or n, and the sound is close to Venice and bear, although the lips shouldn’t touch. Try: bonito.

[c] – ceh – The letter ‘c’ sounds as cereal before e or i. Otherwise it may sound like ‘k’ as computer. Try: cereza as ‘c’, computadora as ‘k’.

[ch] – cheh – Try: chocolate, chico.

[d] – deh – Try: dust, dos.

[f] – effe – The letter ‘f’ sounds the same as in the English Eiffel or fountain. Try: familia.

[g] – heh – The ‘g’ sounds like her before e or i. Otherwise, it sounds like got or get. Try: gesto as ‘her’, guante as ‘get’.

[h] – hache – The ‘h’ in Spanish is silent. Try: hilo.

[j] – hotah – The letter ‘j’ sounds like horse or harsh, never like jar or jump. Try: jirafa.

[k] – kah – The ‘k’ sounds the same as in English; it’s pronounced as car or key. Try: koala.

[l] – ele – The letter ‘l’ is pronounced as lord or like. Try: lobo.

[ll] – doble ele, elle – The double ‘l’ is pronounced as the ‘y’ in yesterday. Try: calle.

[m] – emeh – The letter ‘m’ is the same as in the English mother or man. Try: modo.

[n] – eneh – The letter ‘n’ sounds the same as in the English no and note. Try: nosotros.

[ñ] – enyeh – The ‘ñ’ is not another ‘n’; it sounds as lasagna, onion or canyon. Try: niña.

[p] – peh – The letter ‘p’ sounds the same as in the English pet or paste. Try: pelo.

[q] – koo – The letter ‘q’ is pronounced as curious. When written with ‘ui’ and ‘ue’, the ‘u’ is silent. For example, ‘¿quién?’ is pronounced as /kien/ and ‘¿qué?’ as /ke/ (using the Spanish ‘e’). Try: qué, quién.

[r] – ere – The ‘r’ sounds like brr at the beginning of a word; otherwise, it sounds like break or brown. Try: crear as ‘break’, ratón as ‘brr’.

[rr] – erre – The double ‘r’ sounds like the ‘r’ at the beginning of a word. Its sound is more vibrated, as room or as the sound of a car accelerating. Try: perro.

[s] – ese – The letter ‘s’ sounds the same as in the English sorry or sea. Try: solo.

[sh] – Esse/hacheh – The ‘sh’ sounds as shampoo or show. Try: show.

[t] – teh – The letter ‘t’ is pronounced as in English, although your tongue has to touch the back of your teeth as in tea and test. Try: tela.

[v] – veh – The letter ‘v’ is pronounced as the letter ‘b’, but the lips are touched very mildly as various or voice. Try: vecino.

[w] – doble veh – The letter ‘w’ has the same pronunciation as in the English whisky and wine. Try: kiwi.

[x] – equis – The letter ‘x’ is pronounced as ‘ks’ or ‘gs’ like in explosion or excited. Try: xilófono

[y] – ye/i griega – The letter ‘y’ is similar to the double ‘l’, but with a small difference, as crayon and yellow. Try: yegua.

[z] – setah – The letter ‘z’ is pronounced as ‘th’, not as in zip or zero. Try: zorro.

To make it easier for you to pronounce the letters as the native Spanish speakers do, you can listen to an audio (<http://www.languageguide.org/spanish/alphabet/>) to ensure that you get it right. Just pass the cursor over each letter of the alphabet to get a feel for how to say it like a native.

DON’T use translation software to learn how to pronounce any word in Spanish or any other language, because these applications don’t have the needed accent to make you accurately pronounce words. I have tried it in several languages and I can confidently tell you that such software will screw up your accent learning process.

DO search for real people speaking Spanish on YouTube and other video platforms. These are a lot more likely to be speaking the right Spanish, which simply means that you can learn more and much faster. I know I mentioned this already, but I think it is paramount to reiterate the point.

I have included links to a few YouTube videos to help you in building your pronunciation and accent. You can search for more information on your own (a good student does private study, right?).

To see the glaring pronunciation differences between native Spanish speakers and the translation software, try inputting some of the words you hear the native speakers say to the translation software and see what it comes up with.

It's worth spending some time on getting the pronunciation right, because it will make everything else so much simpler as you learn more and more Spanish. Don't be in such a hurry to learn to speak Spanish that you take short cuts with the pronunciation.

Chapter 3: Basic Spanish Grammar

Don't stress out about Spanish grammar. It's nowhere near as complicated as English, and the Spanish people are pretty laid back about it. That said, there are certain points of Spanish grammar you need to be familiar with if you're going to be understood.

Gender

Spanish has no neutral nouns, in contrast to English, which uses 'the' to refer to someone or something regardless of gender. For example:

English -- Masculino (Masculine)

Dog ----- Perro

Teacher ----- Maestro

Kid ----- Niño

English - Femenino (Feminine)

Dog ----- Perra

Teacher ----- Maestra

Kid ----- Niña

In most cases, there is no masculine or feminine gender for a word, meaning that there is no choice and the word already has a gender. It's no big deal if you get the gender wrong – most people will be able to understand your meaning from the context of the sentence. However, there is one notable exception. El pollo is a chicken – whether it's running around in the farm yard or cooking in the oven. La polla is a slang word for a certain part of male anatomy! For example:

English - Masculino/Femenino

Car ----- Carro, Coche

Book ----- Libro

House ---- Casa

Lamp ---- Lámpara

Word Order

Spanish seems to have a reversed word order in that an adjective goes after a noun. For instance, instead of saying a black car, you say car black (coche negro).

Adjective and noun agreement

In Spanish, adjectives agree with the gender (masculine or feminine) and the number (i.e., plural or singular). For instance, we say the black cat (la gata negra) or the red cars (los coches rojos).

Verb changes

Here's an illustration to help you grasp how verbs change in Spanish. If you did Latin at school and had to conjugate verbs, you'll already have an idea of how it works.

There are five verb changes in Spanish that I will illustrate with the verb 'run': I run ( corro), you run (corres), he or she runs (corre), we run (corremos) and they or you all run (corren). It's worth investing in a good Spanish verb book, such as the Collins series, because this will explain everything you need to know about the different types of verbs and how they change.

On the topic of verbs, you need to know that, in Spanish, there are two verbs meaning 'to be' – ser and estar. You need to be clear which verb to use in specific situations, because if you can't differentiate between them, your Spanish learning journey will be much more difficult.

Briefly, use ser for permanent states and occupations, and estar for temporary states and geographical locations. So you would say Soy enfermera (I am a nurse), but Estoy feliz. (I am happy). You are trained as a nurse, so it's your occupation, but your happiness could change to sadness some time soon. It's worth reading up on the use of these two verbs before you get too immersed in vocabulary.

Personal pronouns

As you probably noticed from the above explanation, you don't need to say 'you run' in Spanish (tú corres); instead, you can just say corres. However, you need to know the different pronouns, and how to use them in sentences and conversation.

Singular Formal ----- Plural Formal

1st person ----- I ----- "We"

1º persona -- Yo ----- "Nosotros/as"

2nd person --- You ----- "You"

2º persona - Tú/vos Usted - Vosotros/as Ustedes

3rd person --- He, she, it ----- "They"

3º persona - Él, ella, ello --- "Ellos, Ellas"

Singular and Plural

Just like English, Spanish also has plurals for different words. Normally, you only need to add 's', or 'es'. However, if the singular ends in 'z,' the plural form will be different. For example:

English singular - Spanish singular

Girl ----- Niña

Book ----- Libro

Song ----- Canción

Dog ----- Perro

Car ----- Carro

Rice ----- Arroz

Nut ----- Nuez

Light ----- Luz

English plural -- Spanish plural

Girls -----	Niñas
Books -----	Libros
Songs -----	Canciones
Dogs -----	Perros
Cars -----	Carros
Rice -----	Arroces*
Nuts -----	Nueces
Lights -----	Luces

*Restaurants will say ‘los arroces’ to describe their rice dishes on the menu

Capitalization

Although this is not important in speaking Spanish, you should be aware that some of the capitalization rules that exist in English don’t apply in Spanish. For instance, days of the week, nationalities, months, and languages don’t need to be capitalized when you are writing in Spanish. However, countries do. You might say ‘Hablo español’ (I speak Spanish), but you would say ‘Soy de España.’ (I am from Spain).

These are the main points where Spanish differs from English, and it may take a while to get used to them. However, you’ll be surprised how quickly you’ll get into the habit of using the correct grammar variations – all it takes is a bit of research and lots of practice!

Chapter 4 Basic General Words and Phrases

Greetings form an important component of any conversation, in any language. In this chapter, we will talk about greetings, courteous words, wishing people happy holidays and much more. Also, you'll learn the correct vocabulary for questions, and basic conversations, and how to use formal and informal modes of address.

Greetings

¿Cuánto cuesta?

Do you have Wi-Fi?

¿Tienen wifi?

Where is the toilet?

¿Dónde están los sanitarios?

Where is the restroom?

¿Dónde están los baños?

How do I get to—?

¿Cómo llego a—?

Where's the phone booth?

¿Dónde están los teléfonos públicos?

Do you speak English?

*¿Habla inglés? -Formal

*¿Hablas inglés? -Informal

Do you speak Spanish?

*¿Habla español? -Formal

*¿Hablas español? -Informal

Yes, a little --- Sí, un poco -Neutral

Do you have change for a dollar?

*¿Tiene cambio para un billete de un dólar? -Formal

Simple emergency words

English ----Neutral

Help! -- ¡Ayuda!, ¡Auxilio!

Fire! -- ¡Fuego!

Watch out! -- ¡Cuidado!

Be careful! -- Ten cuidado!

Stop! -- ¡Alto! - Nuetral

¡Deténgase! - Formal

¡Détente! - Informal

Even if you cannot construct a sensible sentence, just blurt any of the words we have discussed above to get your message across.

Greetings form an important part of the conversation in Spain, where it is expected to say ‘Hello’ and ask after someone’s welfare, even if you’re just being served in a store or a bank. Spanish people consider it the height of rudeness to just walk into a store and ask for what you want with no greeting.

Remember, too, to use the appropriate formal or informal greeting, because that matters as well. The informal second person (usted) is used for people you hardly know, or those who are professionally or maybe socially superior. It’s often also used as a form of respectful address for older people, so it’s important to know the difference.

Chapter 5: Numbers

Everyday conversation will definitely involve the use of numbers. You could be buying stuff at the local store, saying how many siblings you have, talking about money, or exchanging phone numbers, but you won't be able to avoid using some numbers in Spanish. In this chapter, I will introduce you to how to say numbers in Spanish.

1 – 20

Spanish -----Numeral

Cero ----- 0

Uno ----- 1

Dos ----- 2

Tres ----- 3

Cuatro----- 4

Cinco----- 5

Seis----- 6

Siete----- 7

Ocho----- 8

Nueve----- 9

Diez----- 10

Once----- 11

Doce----- 12

Trece----- 13

Catorce----- 14

Quince-----15

Dieciséis ----- 16

Diecisiete ----- 17

Dieciocho ----- 18

Diecinueve ----- 19

Veinte ----- 20

21 – 100

Spanish ----- Numeral

Veintiuno ----- 21

Veintidós ----- 22

Veintitrés ----- 23

Veinticuatro ---- 24

Veinticinco ----- 25

Veintiséis ----- 26

Veintisiete ----- 27

Veintiocho ----- 28

Veintinueve ----- 29

Treinta ----- 30

Treinta y uno ---- 31

Treinta y dos ---- 32

Treinta y tres ---- 33

Treinta y cuatro -- 34

Treinta y cinco ---- 35

Treinta y seis ----- 36

Treinta y siete ----- 37

Treinta y ocho ----- 38

Treinta y nueve ---- 39

Cuarenta ----- 40

Cincuenta ----- 50

Sesenta -----	60
Setenta -----	70
Ochenta -----	80
Noventa -----	90
Cien -----	100

As you see from the above, from 16-19, you just need to know how to say 10 and 6, i.e., dieciseis, 10 and 7, i.e., diecisiete, and on up to 19 which is 10 and 9. The same pattern is followed from 21-29, i.e., veinti + number as just one word. For instance, 21=veintiuno then 22=veintidós then 23=veintitrés. The same pattern follows in 31-39, i.e., treinta followed by the number as two words treinta uno, treinta dos, treinta tres. From 50 to 100 it's practically the same: y uno, y dos, y tres, etc. If you are saying anything between 101 and 199, you simply need to say ciento followed by the number.

100 – 1,000

Spanish ----- Numeral

Cien -----	100
Doscientos -----	200
Trescientos -----	300
Cuatrocientos -----	400
Quinientos -----	500
Seiscientos -----	600
Setecientos -----	700
Ochocientos -----	800
Novecientos -----	900
Mil -----	1,000

Telling the time

English---- Spanish

What time is it?

¿Qué hora es?

I don't have a watch

No tengo reloj

I don't know the hour

No sé la hora

It's twelve o'clock

Son las doce en punto

It's five past one

Es la una y cinco

It's ten past two

Son las dos y diez

It's quarter past three

Son las tres y cuarto

It's twenty past four

Son las cuatro y veinte

It's twenty-five past five

Son las cinco y veinticinco

It's half past six

Son las seis y media

It's twenty-five to seven

Son veinticinco para las siete

It's twenty to eight

Son veinte para las ocho

It's quarter to nine

Son cuarto para las nueve

It's ten to ten

Son diez para las diez

It's five to eleven

Son cinco para las once

It's 15:00

Son las tres de la tarde

It's 21:15

Son las nueve y cuarto

It's 16:50

Son las cinco menos diez

It's 13:40

Son las dos menos veinte

As you can see, when adding minutes, you just need to add y. For instance, 6.05 is seis y cinco.

On the other hand, if you want to say “x” minutes to the hour, here is how to go about it.

To say 10 minutes to five in Spanish, you say son las cinco menoaz diez.

While some of the vocabulary in this chapter may not seem to be associated with numbers, as was stated at the beginning of the chapter, numbers are used a lot in Spanish. You'll be surprised how many of the words here are used in conjunction with numbers.

Chapter 6 Family and Friends

If you spend any time at all in Spain or any Spanish speaking country, it won't be long before you realize just how important the family and family life is. Go to the beach on a Sunday in summer, and you're likely to see tables spread out under the shade of the palm trees with several generations of the same family enjoying good food and each other's company. And when you're speaking with Spanish people, they're bound to ask about your familia (family), so you really need this vocabulary!

Mi compañero de cuarto quiere viajar a—

What language do you speak in your country?

¿Qué idioma hablas en tu país?

Note: It is optional to use the articles el, la, los and las before many countries in Spanish unless the particular name has such an article, e.g., El Salvador.

Speaking about your family and your country is important in Spanish conversation, because the Spanish are naturally curious people, and they want to know all about you, and where you are from. Many Spanish people these days are also surprisingly well traveled, so they will be keen to tell you about their adventures in foreign lands.

Chapter 7 Moving Around

If you're traveling to Spain – or anywhere in Spain – you're going to need to travel by plane, train, automobile, bus or boat, and this chapter will help you to do that painlessly. One big advantage of speaking the language of the country you're traveling in is that you don't automatically stand out as a tourist, and therefore you're less likely to attract the attention of the particularly nasty breed of person who preys on tourists by stealing from them or scamming them. Here's all you need to move around safely and confidently in Spain.

You can watch this YouTube video to help you in your accent and pronunciation: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3ifyku\_6dxA [YouTube search: Asking and giving directions in Spanish - Direcciones en español].

Note: From this point forward, I will purposely leave out pronunciations in Spanish so you can practice searching for them on your own. Simply go to YouTube and search “How to speak Spanish at the...” or “How to... in Spanish”. If you find yourself struggling with pronunciations or simply want to make your Spanish accent sound more like the native speakers, the videos will come in handy.

At the Beach

If you want to speak Spanish at the beach, this part will provide you with the vocabulary you need. If you have been following this guide and checking out the videos, your accent should be a lot better now. As such, I will purposely not include the pronunciations for this part (you can consider this a sort of assignment).

Phrases

English ----- Spanish

Could you put some sunblock on me?
¿Me podrías poner un poco de bloqueador?
Could you get in the shade, please?
¿Te podrías poner debajo de la sombra, por favor?
Where is the lifeguard?
¿Dónde está el salvavidas?
The sand is hot. Be careful please
!La arena está caliente. ¡Ten cuidado por favor!
My son wants to build a sand castle.
Mi hijo quiere construir un castillo de arena.

¿Trajiste un libro para leer?

I like to read at the beach.

A mí me gusta leer en la playa.

Did you bring the beer?

¿Trajiste las cervezas?

Again, if you can speak Spanish on the beach, you are less likely to present a target to thieves. It's also a great opportunity to listen to Spanish people speaking without appearing too obvious, and that will help your pronunciation enormously.

Chapter 8 Food, Cooking and Restaurants

Food and cooking plays a big part in life in Spain. Typical Spanish cuisine is simple but tasty, with just a few quality ingredients combined to make a hearty meal. Practice your Spanish by buying fruit and vegetables at the street markets – you'll be offered lots of samples, because the Spanish are justly proud of their produce! And try your hand at cooking some authentic Spanish dishes. Reading a recipe in Spanish is a great way to expand your vocabulary and fill your stomach at the same time!

Here is a great YouTube video to help you with some of the pronunciations:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=juHg1tgMmy4> [YouTube search: TOP 20 SPANISH FOOD WORDS]. I also recommend these videos:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rmyC9nL5Vf4> [YouTube search: Spanish for Restaurants (version 1)] and <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-pYmgngNVDo> [YouTube search: Learn Spanish Online - At the Restaurant].

Don't be shy – use your new Spanish language skills to order in restaurants. You'll find the staff will be patient and helpful, and you'll get better service, even for trying to order in Spanish. Also, many waiters and waitresses are keen to practice their English, so it could make for a fun night out as well as a valuable learning experience

Chapter 9: Hobbies

Spanish people take their leisure time very seriously – they are some of the most laid back people in the world, and they love to party. Any conversation is likely to include something about hobbies and leisure activities, so it's a good topic to add to your Spanish agenda.

Knowing the vocabulary of leisure is a great way to initiate conversations in Spanish. It will also help you to understand more articles in Spanish newspapers, magazines and websites, even if you don't have any particular hobbies yourself.

Chapter 10: Emergencies

Unfortunately, life doesn't always go to plan, and you may experience an emergency, or be closely involved in one. You'll be able to cope better, and be more helpful as a bystander, if you have the vocabulary to deal with an emergency situation.

Medical help

The first thing you probably need to learn how to say is that you need help. The Spanish phrase for “I need help” is “necesito ayuda”. Here is a video on how to say just that: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NtkveRgwd2s> [YouTube search: How to Say "I Need Help" in Spanish]. After saying this, you can use any of the other words here to pass your message across. When you combine that with what you learn in the phrases section, I’m sure you will get all the help you need.

[YouTube search: how 2 learn spanish : at the hotel]

Those who work in the hospitality trade appreciate it when people try to speak Spanish, and you will often find you get better service. Also, bar and hotel staff can be great sources of extra tuition, since they will correct your mistakes in return for being able to practice their English on you. It all adds to the Spanish learning experience!

Chapter 12 Shopping

This section should help make your shopping a lot easier in a Spanish speaking territory. Shopping in Spain is fun – and it's even more fun when you can ask for what you want in Spanish. On a cultural note, don't be in too much of a hurry to get what you want. Spanish people will chat to each other, either in person or on the phone, either while they're serving you or instead of serving you. It's nothing personal, and it's not because you're a foreigner – it's just the way it is!

The word tienda means ‘store,’ but in Spain, stores often take the suffix ‘ería’ with the service they offer to make up their name. So for example, a hairdresser’s is a peluquería, a baker’s is a panadería, and a book store is a librería. These derive from the nouns peluquero/a, pan and libro, meaning hairdresser, bread and book. Store names always take the feminine gender.

Remember that when asking questions – and you'll be asking a lot of questions when you go shopping – it's the inflection in your voice, rather than just the vocabulary, that conveys the question. If you're shopping at the market, you're expected to haggle, unless you're buying produce, in which case you pay the going rate. Going shopping is an excellent way to practice your Spanish and learn new vocabulary, so make the most of this pleasant learning opportunity whenever you can.

Chapter 13 Post Office and Movies

In this chapter, I won't provide links to YouTube videos for practice; you will do that. Try practicing the words and phrases first, and then search for relevant videos to see if you have gotten them right. If you have followed the guide and visited the videos, you should now have a better accent even if you are a beginner.

Post office

If you want to send snail mail when you are in a country where Spanish is the dominant language, knowing what to say will ensure a much easier time with the staff. Keep in mind many postal workers won't understand English so you'll have to speak Spanish to them. The Post Office – or Oficina de Correo Postal, Correos – is similar to shops and stores in that the workers are not averse to chatting to other customers or on the phone while they serve you. Even a business call will entail enquiries after family members before they get to the heart of the matter, so expect to wait around!

Estuve aburrida.

I would prefer to see a romantic movie.

Preferiría ver una película romántica

When is the premiere of the movie?

¿Cuándo sera el estreno de la película?

It will be on September 5th.

Será el cinco de septiembre.

Have you ever met an actor?

¿Alguna vez has conocido a un actor?

The movie was so sad.

La película estuvo triste.

I liked the movie.

Me gustó la película.

I like independent movies.

Me gusta el cine independiente.

This is a nice movie theatre.

Este es un bonito cine.

When is the next showing?

¿Cuándo es la próxima función?

We should go to the movies more often.

Deberíamos venir al cine más seguido.

Now you should be armed with all the phrases you need to have a great night at the movies. Enjoy!

Chapter 14 Feelings and Emotions

The Spanish are a very vocal and emotional race, so they're going to be telling you how they feel, as well as asking about your state of mind. Remember that emotions are a temporary state, so if you are sad, you would use the verb estar rather than ser. So you would say estoy triste, rather than soy triste.

Vocabulary

English ---- Spanish

Angry ----- Enojado/a

Agitated ----- Agitado/a

Anxious ----- Ansioso/a

Ashamed ----- Avergonzado/a

Bored ----- Aburrido/a

Me siento traicionada.

Jerry said he was feeling sad today.

Jerry dijo que se sentía un poco deprimido el día de hoy.

Some have luck, some not.

Algunos tienen suerte, otros no.

These words and phrases should help you to discuss your own emotions and adopt the appropriate tone when other people answer fully and honestly when you say ‘How are you today?’

Chapter 15 Love and Relationships

Following on naturally from emotions, this chapter will help you pronounce words properly when talking about love, relationships, weddings etc. I won't provide videos for this chapter either. Considering how far you have come, you should be able to pronounce these words if you have been following the lessons keenly.

At a wedding

Once love progresses to the wedding, there's some more vocabulary to learn. Confusingly, la novia refers to the bride, as well as the girlfriend. However, in context it's not so hard to understand. If you're fortunate enough to be invited to a Spanish boda (wedding), prepare to have a great time, and don't forget to practice your Spanish as much as possible.

Vocabulary

English ----- Spanish

Wedding dress --- Vestido de novia

Wedding ring ---- Anillo de bodas

Bridesmaid ----- Dama de honor

Bride ----- Novia

Invitations ----- Invitaciones

Top hat ----- Sombrero de copa

Es hora de que la pareja baile el vals.

The wedding planner organized it all.

La planificadora de bodas organizó cada detalle.

It's time for the toast.

Es hora del brindis.

The couple will honeymoon in Hawaii.

La pareja de casados irá a Hawái para su luna de miel.

How do you feel now you're married?

¿Cómo se sienten ahora que están casados?

We feel more in love than ever.

Sentimos que nos amamos más que nunca.

How long is your honeymoon?

¿Cuánto tiempo estarán de luna de miel?

While the vocabulary for weddings is somewhat specialized, learning it will help you to fit in with your Spanish friends and neighbors. Everyone loves a wedding, and you'll have a great time if you can chat to the guests in their own language.

Chapter 16 Jobs

In this chapter, I will give you important phrases that you can use when talking about work, careers, and jobs. Just like in the previous chapter, try to pronounce the words and then look up the correct pronunciations. If you're intending to be in Spain for any length of time, and you need to earn your keep, this chapter will give you a head start in the Spanish workplace.

If you're from Northern Europe or North America, you should be aware that Spanish wages and salaries are much lower than you may be accustomed to. Another consideration is the siesta – many Spanish businesses and services close for two or three hours from around 2.00 pm and then resume trading later, so although you may work the same number of hours as previously, the actual working day is longer.

Chapter 17: Sports

Spanish speakers love sports. Whether it is football (soccer), volleyball, polo, tennis etc., you will find Spanish speakers at the top levels of play. As such, you might want to know a few words that describe different sports in Spanish just to ensure that you don't end up clueless when people are talking about the latest results.

With everything you have learnt so far, I am confident that you can pronounce the different words above with great fluency without needing any YouTube video to confirm that what you are pronouncing is correct. Therefore, I won't provide any video tutorials in this section.

Before we close the book, it may be a good idea talk about a few mistakes that you may make innocently as you try to speak Spanish, so that you can take action to avoid them. While Spanish is a fairly straightforward language, there are a number of pitfalls for the unwary.

Chapter 19

Common Mistakes Made As People Learn Spanish

Beginners in Spanish make a lot of mistakes. You shouldn't be ashamed, since it happens to everybody. Consider it a stepping stone in your successful learning process. As you know, practice makes perfect – also, anyone who never made a mistake never made anything. It requires patience and practice for you to speak like a native Spanish speaker. Just speak and don't feel embarrassed when doing it. Make your learning fun by learning to learn from the mistakes you make. As you do this, you feel much more comfortable and confident as you speak Spanish, and this will boost your learning speed, as well as giving you and your Spanish friends something to laugh about.

The following are some of the mistakes many people make on their quest to learn Spanish, but if you pay attention to this section, then I highly doubt you will be making the same mistakes.

False Friends

As you learn Spanish, you may assume that the Spanish words that look almost the same as English words have the same meaning. Don't fall into this trap. Some words may have the same meaning, but others may have a very different meaning. Below are a few examples.

Spanish - False friend- Actual Meaning

Soportar --- Support----- Tolerate

Once ----- Once ----- Eleven

Librería ---- Library ----- Bookshop

Importe ---- Import ----- Amount

Firma ----- Firm ----- Signature

Éxito ----- Exit ----- Success

Embarazada - Embarrassed - Pregnant

Cualidad --- Quality --- Characteristics

Carta ----- Card ----- Letter

Learning more of these words will help you avoid embarrassing situations as you speak. What is most important is to master how they are pronounced in context, just to make sure that you don't end up saying the wrong word with the same spelling.

Sentence Order

This is another common mistake you should be careful of. You may at times use the sentence order of your native language to translate your thoughts into Spanish sentences. Direct translation of individual words (literal translation) in a sentence is a common mistake for beginners learning all languages. It's what Google and other online translators often do (although not always), and it's incorrect. Avoid it at all costs. In particular, remember that, in Spanish, the noun always goes before the adjective, so un vestido rojo (literally 'a dress red') is what you would say if you wanted to buy a red dress.

Gender of Words

This is yet another common mistake of almost all new language learners. Look out for words that may look feminine but are actually masculine, such as: el día, el programa, el clima, el tema, el sistema, el mapa, el problema, el sofá, el planeta and el idioma.

Another confusing gender trick is that words ending in 'dad' are feminine. Usually, nouns ending in consonants are masculine. Think la electricidad, la calidad, la universidad.

To avoid making this mistake, make sure you get the gender (la or el) of a new word as you learn it. If you're not sure, check it in a dictionary – that will always tell you the correct gender

Date

In English, the noun ‘date’ can either mean ‘a day on the calendar’ or ‘a romantic or social appointment with someone/engagement’. This is not the same in Spanish: you use the words “fecha” and “cita” respectively when talking about the two.

Misuse of the Word "American"

If you are a United States national, you are probably used to referring to yourself as an “American.” In Spanish, an “Americano” is a person from anywhere in South or North America. To say “I am from the United States,” you should use the phrase, “Soy de los Estados Unidos” so as to avoid any confusion.

Chapter 20: Short Stories and Questions

Short stories are an integral part of the human experience. Culturally and historically, stories have allowed us to keep memories, experiences, myths, legends, accidents and incidents (among many other things) alive through time. Without stories, we would not be where we are today. For example, many children learn what to do and what not to do from stories told by their parents. Without these stories, a lot of us would not have the knowledge that we have today. Stories also allow us to bond with one another, communicating experiences of importance and reminiscing on past events that were significant in our lives. Stories make each and every one of us who we are, and all of us have thousands of stories that need to be told. Each language you speak is a different way to tell each story, and each culture and language tells stories differently than the next.

Pulling all the rules and words together to form sentences and a story that you can effectively communicate to another person is a huge accomplishment. Practicing these stories and questions will help you to improve your ability to transition from one sentence to the next. Short stories are great for improving your ability to explain and describe scenarios and happenings in your everyday life. Being able to tell stories is one of the first big steps in transitioning to conversation, which is arguably the hardest part of learning any new language.

Below are two short stories and questions for you to practice and go over.

Short Story Number One

Spanish

Manuel está de pie en línea en el aeropuerto. Él camina hasta el mostrador cuando es su turno. La recepcionista en el mostrador le pregunta por su ID y ella comprueba sus datos de bus. Sí, que se confirma en el vuelo 1103 de Dallas a Nueva York a las 3 pm. Lleve sus bolsas para sentarse y esperar hasta que llegue el avión. El empleado imprime el billete y se lo da a él. Los agentes de seguridad a pie por él con un perro grande. El perro está olfateando alrededor de los bolsos de las personas que tratan de detectar drogas o explosivos. Manuel se alivia cuando el perro pasa por su lado. El perro se da vuelta y comienza a oler su bolsa y empieza a ladearse. El agente de seguridad mira a Manuel. “Señor, por favor, ven conmigo y llevar su bolsa.”

Manuel pone a la defensiva inmediatamente. Él sabe que no tiene nada para que el perro ladrande se acerque. Se dice que los oficiales, “no tengo nada”, pero el oficial de seguridad lo acompaña hasta el lado. “Vamos a ser el juez de eso” declaró el oficial de seguridad y comenzó a buscar. Su equipaje fue llevado y recogido a través, y luego la bolsa se empuja a través de otro escáner y luego recogió a través de nuevo. “Por favor, tome asiento por allí,” el oficial de seguridad señaló por encima de las sillas donde había otras personas esperar demasiado. Manuel se sentó rápidamente. Él no estaba contento el retraso causado este y con la esperanza de que no se pierda su avión. Manuel no le gusta llegar tarde.

English

Manuel is standing in line at the airport. He walks up to the counter when it is his turn. The clerk at the counter asks him for his ID and she checks his bus details. Yes, he is confirmed on flight 1103 from Dallas to New York at 3pm. He carries his bags to sit and wait until the plane arrives. The clerk prints out his ticket and hands it to him. The security officers walk by him with a large dog. The dog is sniffing around people's bags trying to detect drugs or explosives. Manuel is relieved when the dog walks past him. The dog turns and starts to sniff his bag and begins to bark. The security officer looks at Manuel. “Sir, please come with me and bring your bag.”

Manuel becomes defensive immediately. He knows that he has nothing for the dog to be barking about. He says to the officers, “I don't have anything,” but the security officer escorts him to the side. “We will be the judge of that,” the security officer stated and began to search him. His luggage was taken and picked through, and then the bag was pushed through another scanner and then picked through again. “Please take a seat over there,” the security officer pointed over to chairs where there were others waiting too.

Manuel quickly sat down. He was not happy about the delay this caused and hoping that he doesn't miss his plane. Manuel doesn't like being late.

Short Story Number Two

Spanish

Michael y su amigo Mark están explorando un nuevo país en un coche que han alquilado. Su próxima aventura es encontrar un restaurante con el nombre de “La mejor hamburguesa en la ciudad”, debido a las críticas positivas que se han hecho que señalan que el restaurante no tiene “la mejor hamburguesa en la ciudad.” Sin embargo, ahora se encuentran perdidos. Se les dio instrucciones que eran imposibles de seguir y que han estado conduciendo durante horas. Ellos encuentran un extraño caminando por la carretera y que parece ser local en la zona y es posible que puedan ayudarles a descubrir qué dirección deben ir en. Se detienen y le piden dirección. El desconocido sonríe y responde: “Oh, ese es mi lugar favorito. Es fácil de llegar y yo le puede decir cómo.” Mark agarra un lápiz y papel para tomar notas acerca y escucha como el extraño se les da direcciones.

“Siga recto hasta que vea un granero con una puerta rota. Gire a la derecha después de que el granero y continuar en pasar dos árboles grandes en el lado derecho. Cuando se llega a un arbusto a una milla, que se parece a una araña gigante, de miedo pero cierto., Gire a la derecha en ese arbusto y seguir recto durante otros quince minutos. Usted debe pasar una gasolinera a la derecha. Unos diez minutos después de la gasolinera, verá tres pilas de arena y una casa con una vaca atada a un árbol. A la derecha en la casa y el restaurante que busca será el segundo restaurante a su izquierda. La luz de la muestra están rotos y que es un poco difícil de leer, pero no se puede perder. Cuenta con una roca al lado de él que se parece a un mono con un cuchillo. Algunas personas estarán fuera bailando y bebiendo cerveza. Buena suerte y buen viaje!” Marcos levantó la vista de sus notas que había escrito las instrucciones sobre. “¿Recibió todo eso?”, Preguntó Micheal Marcos. quien los recita de nuevo para confirmar que los había conseguido derecha. Marcos se rió para sí mismo mientras leía sobre las direcciones de nuevo, “esto debe ser divertido,” dijo a sí mismo. Se ponen de nuevo en el coche y comienzan en la carretera siguiendo las instrucciones proporcionadas. ## English

Micheal and his friend Mark are exploring a new country in a car they have rented. Their next adventure is to find a restaurant by the name of “The Best Hamburger in Town” because of the positive reviews that have been made that said the restaurant does have “The Best Hamburger in Town.” But , they are now find themselves lost. They were given directions that were impossible to follow and they have been driving around for hours. They find a stranger walking down the road and he seems to be local to the area and it is possible he can help them find out which direction they should be going in. They stop and ask him for direction. The stranger smiles and replies: "Oh, that's my favorite place. It is simple to get there and I can tell you how." Mark grabs a pen and paper to take notes on and listens as the stranger gives them directions.

"Go straight until you see a barn with a broken gate. Make a right after that barn and continue on until you pass two large trees on the right-hand side. When you come to a bush about a mile down, that looks like a giant spider, scary but true. Turn right at that bush and keep going straight for another fifteen minutes. You should pass a gas station on your right. About ten minutes after the gas station, you will see three piles of sand and a house with a cow tied to a tree. Make a right at that house and the restaurant you are looking for will be the second restaurant on your left. The sign light are broken and it is a bit difficult to read, but you can't miss it. It has a rock next to it that looks like a monkey holding a knife. Some people will be outside dancing and drinking. Good luck and safe travels!"

Mark looked up from his notepad that he had written the directions on. "Did you get all that?" Micheal asked Mark. He recited them back to confirm he had got them right. Mark giggled to himself as he read over the directions again, "This should be fun," he said to himself. They get back into the car and begin down the road following the directions provided. Before they know it, they are identifying the landmarks that the stranger told them they would see and are making their way quickly towards the restaurant. After seeing the rock that looks as though it could be a monkey holding a knife, the men notice the broken sign out front of the restaurant.

"This must be it! We found it!" Micheal cheered, doubtful of the direction's accuracy to begin with. "Who would have thought we could find a place based on a handful of strange landmarks," Mark stated, crumpling up the note with the written directions and threw it into the floorboard of the vehicle. A gust of wind blew the receipt back out of the floor of the car and onto the dusty driveway of the restaurant. As the men walked inside the restaurant by the name of “The Best Hamburger In Town” the crumpled-up directions bounced down the road like a tumbleweed in the desert.

In the second short story, Michael and Mark were lost while driving around in a new country, which can be highly stressful for people who aren't fluent in the country's dominant language. The second short story questions and phrases give you a variety of options if you are traveling and get lost on the road. There are also different expressions regarding the rules of the road and various phrases about traveling via automobile. With these short stories, we hope that you have learned a little more about conversational Spanish and how it can be used to help you in different ways.

Conclusion

As you have hopefully discovered, speaking Spanish is not difficult, especially when you have so many words to use in your everyday conversations. The best way to master the language is to hear Spanish speakers speak it, and converse with them. Anyone can learn from a book, but the best way to retain the language is to use it in everyday conversation. Getting to know the way in which certain words are used and learning how different people say different words can be difficult. This is because people who are fluent or native to a language may be lax on certain pronunciations and proper verbiage because they have adopted a more slang or relaxed language by nature. This is perfectly normal – you do it currently in the language you speak without even realizing it. This is why speaking to people conversationally is incredibly important in learning and retaining a new language.

You now should have all the information you need to speak and practice Spanish every day. Make use of that information by making friends with Spanish speakers, either in real life or online, and using what you have learned. Spanish is a fun language, and it's very colorful and expressive. Have fun with it, and have fun with the people who speak it as their native language!

Key Takeaways

The best way to learn Spanish or any other language is to collect as many phrases as possible, then look for videos that show how to pronounce them.

When you have the phrases, you need to practice and listen to native speakers saying them.

Don't rely on online translators like Google Translator to teach you the right accent or pronunciation.

If you're a Little hesitant about practicing your Spanish because people speak too fast for you to pick up all the words, try reading Spanish newspapers to increase your vocabulary and give you more confidence. You'll be surprised how much you can understand!

Learn as the children do – associate words with pictures. Pick up the special offer leaflets from the local stores each week and expand your vocabulary.

The best way to master the accent is to listen to the different audio, speak to Spanish speakers and watch training videos where native speakers teach the language.

You can learn a lot more when you have a passion for mastering Spanish.

You really don't need to be a master of grammar to speak Spanish or any other language; in any case, most natives never learn the grammar themselves!

How to Put This Information into Action

Go to each chapter, try pronouncing the different words in that chapter, and then look for relevant YouTube videos to confirm your pronunciation. Practice as much as possible to master the pronunciation.

Go to the phrases section in each chapter and try pronouncing the words/phrases.

Go to YouTube or any other place you can search for relevant videos that will help you with the pronunciation.

Once you have mastered how to pronounce the words, go back to each chapter and try to pronounce them without referring to the videos.

Don't just stop at these phrases. Instead, you should seek to expand your knowledge of Spanish.

Have a friend or family member ask you the questions in the book and require you to answer them correctly. This will build your conversational skills which are some of the most important skills when learning a new language.

Do you know someone who speaks Spanish? Ask them to take the time, even if it's an hour on the phone occasionally and speak with you in conversation using the Spanish language. This will give you the feel and practice of having an everyday conversation in Spanish.
